

Tell a new story of humanity

Embrace complexity

Design economies that distribute income & wealth (Bent, business, ideas)

Regenerate resources (recycle)

Stop growth addiction

Global perspective

Planetary economies: the era we are now in

Our current global understanding of economics are based on an era with models which need rethinking

From degenerative by default to regenerative by design

Shifts required for a future-proof economic model from me to we not dominating nature (our source) from economies that are distributive by default to economies that are distributive by design

Focus on thriving instead of continuous growth

we must not only redistribute income, but also wealth

Moving away from GDP: Growth as the main goal of the economy

Kate Raworth: Doughnut Economics Animations

put economy in service to life meeting the needs of all within the needs of the planet - finding balance

Joseph Stiglitz: Problems with GDP as an Economic Barometer

Measuring only with GDP is not sustainable

It's an indicator of production, should not be a goal in itself

War increases GDP

Not measuring the well-being of people

Having right ways to measure is important

Search for data to tell us what we need before we reach the end of our country

David Harvey: The Crisis of Capitalism Animation

"New social order": responsible, just, humane

"Change a mode of thinking."

Capitalism is not working

Capitalism creates jobs and wealth, but it also creates inequality and environmental damage

Through all the talk of cultural reasons for financial and economic decline

The profits of finance & the profits of manufacturing are decreasing

"Capital cannot abide a limit."

The profits of finance & the profits of manufacturing are decreasing

excessive power of capital

Labour has no power

"Internal contradictions of capital accumulation"

Where is discussion and debate?

There are those who are capitalist and those who are not the form of a current crisis is dictated by how we came out of the last one

Michael Sandel: Why we shouldn't trust markets with our civic life

Market thinking and market values have begun to dominate every aspect of life, leading to everything being put for sale

Markets crowd out societal norms and values

Monetizing life leads to social segregation

Where do markets belong & what shouldn't be up for sale?

Where markets from office to local neighborhood create interesting and healthy and care about the common good

Social segregation erodes democracy

Andy Stirling and Adrian Smith: Communities, Technologies and Democratic Innovation

Innovation = political

Alternative paths

scaling down institutions?

Technology can help democracy

Politics shapes innovation

These who together have economic power can change a public debate

It's possible for a democracy that has government can take up to work for the country

A democracy doesn't seem to solve some deeply divisive problems

Politics of knowledge: new knowledge requires more people and participation

Democracy: interests but also small sectors of industry

University of innovation is risk but it's more paths towards the common good

Innovation should not be weighed

Twin peaks paradox - 1. Debt crisis, 2. Idle cash

Idle cash not being invested in productive ventures

Life cash should be used to empower talent and improve human lives

Re-uniting the political and the economic spheres current situation: Migration of power from the political sphere to the economic sphere

What if money would follow labour, not investors

Akseli Virtanen: Financial Activism

Hedge from the edge

"Small" hedging

Robin Hood Foundation

Hedge for commonwealth

Mariana Mazzucato: Government—investor, risk-taker, innovator
