

To the members of the facilitation groups,

Here are my cues for your facilitation tasks.

On your turn you will be, for about an hour, tutors of a class that is prepared to discuss your topic. I will be a member of the class.

In a separate file in the course materials, please find a list of questions (Questions for Facilitation). Your class will receive the same questions.

Your preparation (and theirs) is to find answers to the questions. They can be found in the net, but use some source criticism in searching for them. A site titled "Positivism is bad" or "Hurray for ethnography" may not be the most reliable.

On the day, you will lead the discussion through the questions and answers, and, I hope, everyone will learn something.

Best,

Matti
