(limited!) hybrid teaching and students in classrooms

Unfortunately, Corona restrictions are tightening again. In order to be able to act responsibly and keep everybody as safe as possible, we are following closely what is happening. As per the Metropolitan Area coronavirus coordination group, the use of masks is again recommended in all spaces where other people are present. Classroom use has not yet been limited, though, so all students are still welcome to attend Friday's sessions on location. Lecture hall U270 U8 (on the other side of Rakentajanaukio, see map below) has a capacity of 115 people -- to optimise the use of this space in terms of safety, we suggest that you seat yourself so that the distance between groups is maximised. For those unable to attend on location, the sessions will be streamed through Zoom as before. In case of in-session group work, remote students will have to make their own arrangements to communicate with their group members.

During the AFTERNOON sessions in Living+, you will be working and receiving tutoring in groups (see end of document). Groups have been formed on the basis of your midterm coursework submissions, as well as your disciplinary backgrounds. During the afternoon, groups are encouraged to meet and work in the Living+ spaces as before. Teachers will circulate the spaces to provide feedback.

The remaining Friday morning sessions

You might have noticed that this Friday does not have a lecture scheduled. We will have a little more time during this morning session to go through and discuss your work, and address some practical issues regarding the expected end result.

Friday next week, however, we have the possibility to tailor this last "normal" morning session of the USP Studio 1 to your needs. Whether you wish to see a lecture/discussion on a specific topic during the second half of the morning, in line with the presentations we've seen before, or are not in the slightest interested in another presentation, here's your chance to voice your preference:

Please, answer the poll as soon as possible, so we have time to make arrangements!

A little note on the expected end result

The most important information regarding the end result was already given last week, but here we'll add that, in addition to the text requirements, we expect at least one map/image covering the entire area your group has been given, showing your plan in its proper scale and context. Without this overall view, your work will not be considered complete. It is up to you to decide whatever other images and graphics you want to use to explain and illustrate your plan further.
