

Classification of radices (SDRForum)
 SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.
SDRForum	SDRForum is a non-profit organization that promotes the use of Software Defined Radio (SDR) in the field of amateur radio. It was founded in 2005 and is currently active in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. The organization's main goal is to provide information and support for SDR enthusiasts, as well as to promote the use of SDR in the field of amateur radio.