

Exercise: Me as a change maker

What organization form?

A need-based startup.
A social enterprise that scales organically.
Rather than looking for specific organizational forms, it is a choice driven by personal value and finding opportunities.

What tactics do you want to use?

It depends on the context and as individuals we have dynamic roles which change in each situation (home, work, etc.)
At this point in the career it is also about personal development and learning.
It is important to start acting and networking and to offer something to the network to make it interesting to work with you.

What issues do you want to work with?

It is difficult to decide on one issue one wants to focus on.

What makes you tick?

Vision is a driving force when working.
When the doing resonates with one's inner self
